INTRODUCTION

Poetry, a rhythmical concoction of words
can express a multitude of emotions or moods.

They can be penned to surprise and delight
or simply to bring out suppressed feelings to light.

To Robert Frost, "Poetry is the kind of thing poets write."
Most times, we can't fathom completely what they write.

Though we read between and beyond the lines and marvel,
the true essence of a poem is not easy to unravel.

Poetry can help you become more sensitive to language
as well as to other people's points of view to gauge.

Simply take in the beauty and messages inherent in words
as they arouse the faculties and senses of varied moods.

To our muse, give us inspiration that we may reach
the hearts of people to light and delight,
but we do not intend to teach or preach.
Let our imagination bring to light,

words to touch the inner depths
of those who are happy or face calamity;
but who take pains and go to great lengths
to find beauty in everything including poetry.
